

ADVERTISEMENT

victorian plumbing.co.uk

£119.95

★★★★★

£14.95	£99.95	£49.95	£44.95
£54.95	£89.95	£88.95	£44.95
£44.95	£14.95	£79.95	£8.95

ON THE BOARD: Pensions campaigner Baroness Altmann, 62, becomes the chairman of financial tech firm Pensionsync

By CITY & FINANCE REPORTER FOR THE DAILY MAIL
PUBLISHED: 22:25, 18 July 2018 | UPDATED: 22:55, 18 July 2018

 Share

 4
View comments

Pensions campaigner Ros Altmann has become chairman of financial tech firm Pensionsync.

The 62-year-old was director general of over-50 specialist Saga from 2010 to 2013 and a Conservative pension minister from 2015 to 2016.

Pensionsync is a London company which builds software that aims to make it easier and cheaper for firms to deal with auto-enrolment on staff pension schemes.

© Christopher Cox
Pensions campaigner Ros Altmann

Baroness Altmann is married with three children and lives in north London.

All Articles
 Share prices

THIS IS MONEY PODCAST

- Why it's time to fight back against parking madness (and how to beat a ticket): This is Money podcast

▶ Portfolio
▶ Newsletter
▶ Guides

▶ Savings rates
▶ Deals
▶ Calculators

BE A SUCCESSFUL INVESTOR

 This is Money's brilliant guide now available on the Kindle

MARKET DATA

- ▶ FTSE 100
- ▶ RNS
- ▶ A to Z
- ▶ Top movers
- ▶ Funds
- ▶ Shares
- ▶ Brokers
- ▶ News
- ▶ Heatmaps
- ▶ Savings rates
- ▶ All market data
- ▶ Diary
- ▶ Sectors
- ▶ Gilts
- ▶ Indices
- ▶ Director deals
- ▶ Gold / oil
- ▶ Charting
- ▶ Forex
- ▶ Share alerts
- ▶ News alerts

TOP DIY INVESTING PLATFORMS